Philadelphia, With the help of Sarah Pugh, the writer has obtained the desired copy (the other item on this number) sent herewith. Hopes that Mary Grew, who is now in Boston, "will not be new-organized by her intimacy with those of that class We regard her as one of our most valuable Anti-Slavery laborers," who is also "advancing in her views of woman's 'appropriate sphere.'" The writer rejoices that Mrs. Lydia Maria Child "is doing so much for the cause & for woman by acquitting herself so nobly in the Editorial chair." William Henry Furness says the Standard is becoming one of the best papers in the country. The writer, having been shown by James Sloan Gibbons a letter received from Maria Weston Chapman, has sympathized with the Chapmans in "the loss of Philadelphia. The Liberty Bell arrived four hours before the closing of the (Philadelphia) fair, at which they made upwards of $750. The state meeting surpassed anything they had ever known, "in feeling and in fruit." John A. Collins contributed much to its success, as well as an address by Dr. (David) Nelson. The writer asks if Collins could not be spared for Pennsylvania for a year or two. The "change proposed respecting the Freeman, & Standard" was carried, in spite of Collins's warning against it. Philadelphia. A letter about the escape of fugitive slaves. "There are now 31 persons here, men, women and children who are on their way to Canada & will start tomorrow morning." Tells about the excitement of the owners and the rewards offered for the fugitive slaves. The slaves' money was expended during the 12 days they were secreted in Baltimore. More fugitives are expected. As a final resort the writer turns to the addressee for aid, and hopes she may appeal to the Bos-Female Anti-Slavery Society. In Philadelphia there is need of caution for fear of betrayal, and the management of the migration lies in the hands of a few.

Philadelphia. The writer has drawn comfort from the addressee's remarks in the Liberator on Thomas Parnell Beach's letter. Has sympathized with the "persecuted brothers" in New England who prefer dungeon and banishment to "servile homage to a worthless Idle Lordly Clergy"; also with the "Three Martyrs of Quincy, Illinois, sentenced for 12 years in the Missouri Penitentiary - 'for informing a poor bondsman how to escape from slavery'." The writer lauds the addressee's conduct at the Meeting of Freemen, and was glad that the nomination of Caroline Weston prevailed. Remarks on the attitudes of Nathaniel Colver and Joshua Witt. Exhorts the addressee not to give up the woman question. The writer's husband (Robert Moore) has sent a package of small boxes made by himself. The writer encloses $5 for T.P. Beach.

Philadelphia. The writer has obtained permission from "Emmeline" and Sarah Douglass to have their pieces published in the Liberty Bell. Emmeline is the pseudonym of Mira Townsend, who made no objections to her real name's first appearance in the Liberty Bell. The writer sends lines on Dr. Channing by Benjamin Rush Plumly. The writer refers to a call on the addressee by Charles C. Burleigh. "I should feel no confidence in William Henry Burleigh, that he would not again betray our cause to please his party." However, the writer entertained Burleigh and his wife when they passed through the city and found no effort in giving him "as Charles's brother, and as an A.S. poet." The writer has been admonished

Philadelphia. The writer's path is solitary as her family connections are sectarian and apposed to "modern abolition movements." Exhorts the addressee to continue in her valiant fight for the cause. Mrs. Susan (Cox) Luther has divers times been dragged out of meeting houses and cast into the street for speaking the truth. The writer quotes extensively from a written statement by Mrs. Luther of her sentiments in regard to freedom of expression of religious conviction. The writer was disappointed to find in the notices of the Pennsylvania Convention of the Eastern district that the Philadelphia riots were accorded less probation than they deserved, except by R. Purvis. The writer seldom sees Lucretia Mott, who is one of the most popular public speakers. However, the writer wants her to be more "ultra" in carrying out her Non-Resisting principles at home. There is a great persecution movement in the Cherry Street meeting of which L. Mott is a member. The writer hopes that "brother Stephen Symonds Foster" will not die, "by such savage cruelty too." «Philadelphia?»: The writer begs the addressee to try to make plain to Mrs. M. W. Chapman the Philadelphians' position toward the Nat. Anti-Slavery Standard. The writer believes that the Boston friends' view of them is unjust, since they regard the Philadelphian Society as dependent on the National Society (i.e. American Anti-Slavery Society), "when the true case is that we aid their funds instead of taking from them."

Reminds the addressee of the decision of the Executive Committee that, if arrangements could be made with the Standard, this paper should be sent to subscribers to the Pennsylvania Freeman in place of the Free. The friends in New York avored the idea, since they ould gain $400 by the transaction. Regrets the dissension caused by money transactions.

Philadelphia. The writer saw James S. Gibbons in New York, who read to him the letter addressed to the addressees by the New York portion of the Committee, "dated 6th month 5th in which everything of importance is yielded." Gibbons adheres to the point of "making the public acquainted with the removal of the Society." Gibbons's objections to John A. Collins as General Agent continue. Collins, the writer thinks, has not most of his heart in the cause, and a number of people are opposed to his reappointment.

Philadelphia. "The Mtgs. of our Ex. Com. since the mtgs. of the Nat. (American Anti-Slavery) Society have been to me most painful ..." Says they lacked buoyancy. "McKim has come out decidedly for the Nat. Society." The Philadelphia Abolitionists want to sever their connection with the Nat. Anti-Slavery Standard. The writer's Society has not yet discussed the subject of agents, and the writer thinks W. Phillips should speak on the matter instead of S. S. Foster and A. Kelley. Mentions Adin Ballou's description of the new Executive Committee. Says the next meeting of her Society is very important since it must consider the subject of the Society's obligation to circulate the Standard. Philadelphia. The writer sends samples of some kind of material to be used in making articles for the Anti-Slavery fair. Praises the Liberator and Wendell Phillips. Says that "our Ex Com" had a long meeting about the use of its offices by the Liberty Party. The use of the offices was refused. "I take the ground that 3rd party is hostile to our soc ..." Says that few agree with him. Says Abby Kelley must come and help them out of a critical situation.

Philadelphia: Now that the elections are over, the writer suggests that the Nat. Anti-Slavery Standard "be filled with an entirely new style of reading matter." The subjects of Birney, the Emancipator, and all politics should be thrown to the dogs and something "more generally interesting" be put in their place. If E. Quincy keeps up his onslaught on the New Organizationists, all will have to protest. "It will be wrong both in principle & policy." Subscribers are falling off rapidly in Pennsylvania. The writer gives statistics. Wants to see more from the addressee's pen. Quincy's articles are able, but too long.

Philadelphia. Invites Caroline Weston and her sisters to come to the annual meeting at Kennett and visit at the writer's house. Edmund Quincy is also welcome to stay there. Remarks on the prospects of Garrison's influence in England. The disposition to hear Frederick Douglass at the British & Foreign Anti-Slavery Society's meeting "seemed a little evidence of repentance..." Would have preferred the Standard to be less severe in its treatment of this Society. The writer desires gentle dealings "even with poor Cassius M. Clay - so lamentably fallen & degraded." Remembers his anti-pacifistic utterances. Clay's [redacted] reaches many in the South, where the anti-slavery in [redacted] true American might do good, wherefore the writer would have it continue to circulate.

«Philadelphia» Submits a plan to help the Freeman through regular correspondents. The first correspondent secured is Oliver Johnson, who will write weekly. While the plan is to get correspondents who will write gratuitously, in Johnson's case it seemed right to compensate him. The writer seeks four correspondents from Boston, each writing once a month. Asks the addressee to be one of them and to persuade three others to serve — possibly Wendell Phillips, E. Quincy, Francis Jackson or Anne W. Weston.

Philadelphia: Introduces a subject brought before the Executive Committee (of the Philadelphia society): "It is proposed to send an agent to G. Britain & Ireland on behalf of our cause" - not to call large meetings, but, by means of private intercourse, to rouse interest and stimulate giving. Would it be wise to send James Miller McKim? Some are prognosticating a visit to England by James and Lucretia Mott. The writer alludes, first humorously, then seriously to "a manner of conducting a Bazaar" which caused great scandal - apparently the raffling of articles at the Boston fair.

Philadelphia. The writer inquires, in the interest of the Philadelphia Female A.S. Society, if it would be expedient to engage Miss Lucy Stone for a few weeks as a lecturer to women. Seeks the opinion of the addressee and of the writer's cousin, Wendell Phillips. Asks a number of questions about Miss Stone, such as; "Does she wear well?" "Is her conversation instructive and interesting to the unenlightened?" Laments the absence of Mrs. Chapman. Preparations for the next fair (in Philadelphia) have begun. "We mean to have a better one than we have ever yet held." The writer will send the Annual Report and "a sermon, recently preached by Mrs. Lucretia Mott to the medical students of this city."

Anti Slavery Office, Philadelphia. A copy of a letter relating to the arrival of the escaped slave (Brown). "He came to me ... in a box tightly hooped marked 'this side up' by overland express from the city of Richmond." Gives dimensions and description of box. The boxed passenger was saved from suffocation by the free use of water and by constantly fanning himself. The "this side up" notice on the box was not regarded and he was twice placed with his head downwards, one time being obliged to keep this position for 20 miles." This nearly killed him." The addressee is to send the man with this letter on to Francis Jackson Boston, and is not to publish the affair.

To the Reverend Edwards Amasa Park of Andover.

[Philadelphia.] The Committee has conferred with Mr.Draper on the subject of the proposed publication and in the hope that some arrangement can be made with the Bibliotheca, the editor will confer at even greater length. Would like to have a religious organ which would be more personal than the Bibliotheca Sacra, which would give their church a means of communication. But they do not wish to interfere with the circulation of Dr.Park's paper, and hopes that some agreement can be made through Mr.Draper. A.L.S. 4p. 10 x 7 3/4 in.

Philadelphia. The writer has purchased for the addressee a copy of the Episcopal Prayer Book, published by Lippincott & Grambo, "containing as a frontispiece Schaeffer's ~~sic~~ picture of Christus Consolator with the negro in chains left out." The writer intends to accompany the book with a letter giving an account of "this ... new illustration of American pro-slavery diablerie and northern commercial crudeness." The writer will also send the addressee a Bible illustrated with the same frontispiece and trusts that she will send the latter to A. Scheffer, "whom you very well know."

“(Philadelphia?). The writer is unable to send “the missing number of ‘Sartain’ to complete your Vol., but by far the most important of it to us, the ‘Year at Ambleside’ these sheets will enable you to complete in your mind.” The writer has heard from Mrs. Michell that she and Mary Estlin had been at Ambleside, but that Miss Martineau was too feeble to see even Mary. Asks if the “Westminister article” (in the Liberator) is by Miss Martineau. The writer laments that “neither Italian air, nor Swiss mountains” can cure Mary Estlin’s “tormenting headaches.” Writes of two exhilarating evenings with Wendell Phillips.

Philadelphia. Tells with indignation about Lippincott's editions of the Bible and the Prayer Book in which the frontispiece, Ary Scheffer's Christus Consolator, has the figure of the negro in chains left out. The publisher "is said to have had the sanction, if not the advice, of a distinguished prelate in the Episcopal Church." Cites cases of truckling to Southern prejudice on the part of the American Sunday School Union and the American Tract Society. The writer hopes the addressee will send Mr. Scheffer both the Bible and the Prayer Book. The writer again declines to write for the Liberty Bell. Explains that he cannot write of the late slave insurrections in the South because there had been none. "The last that occurred was that of Nat Turner in Southampton, Va. twenty-six years ago." Explains that the slaves' hope for the election of Colonel Fremont had been roused by the politicians who accused him of favoring abolition. Tells of the record-breaking number of slaves' escapes. "Flight not fight is the slaves' ultima ratio." Fifty have passed through the hands of "our vigilance committee" in the last fortnight. Tells of some heroic instances of escape. The escaping slaves "are aided by free men & free white men. Nine out of ten ... are brought or aided hither by southern men." Refers to the author of The Impending Crisis of the South (H.R. In answer, apparently, to a query, the writer explains that A.L. Otis is a nom de plume, which he insists on keeping secret. "If it should ever be divulged accidentally" whom this name represents, "there will be an end to all literary effort on my part." If this should seem suspicious to the addressee, the articles must be sent back.

"Philadelphia. The writer has offered his services to the Secretary of the Navy. "In view of the calamitous condition of our national affairs I could do no less... It is sad to contemplate the horrors likely to come from this Civil War - but the conflict commenced with the capture of Fort Sumpter..." There can be no compromise now; "we must whip the South into reason" or acknowledge the confederacy and live apart in future. "It is well said your coals (Simon pure Anti Slavery party) have lighted this fire..." Fears for the whites of the South if the slaves should be awakened to their rights. "Humanity shudders at the thought of a second St.Domingo." News came from Baltimore this morning that Massachusetts soldiers Philadelphia: The writer has been in Washington, "seeing an abundance of troops with all the fixings for crushing out the great Rebellion." Believes that there is "too much corruption and political claptrap at work in the appointing of important officers..." Comments on the inefficiency of the military leaders. A neighbor of the writer, Lieutenant Grebbe, "who was killed at his gun is our sacrifice of the blunder." Discusses the issues of the war. The writer has had no call for his services from the Navy Department. Henry Wilson has influence with the powers that be. "Times are now decidedly hard in business matters.. [redacted] safest plan would be to settle in the country on a good farm. Wishes "the science of war should become so terribly effective as to completely destroy contending armies." Philadelphia. Went to see Isaac Mendenhall at Hamorton. Visited John and Hannah Cox at Longwood. Attended a meeting in the Progressive Friends' "cozy meeting-house." His speech was listened to "with gratifying interest." Was followed by Thomas F. Curtis, a materialist, who linked Slavery with Calvinistic doctrine. W.L.G. showed him the "utter absurdity" of this idea. Other speakers were Anna E. Dickinson and J. A. Dugdale. Tells of a visit to Bayard Taylor and his German wife. Mentions other visits, -Philadelphia, Girard College etc. Is now with J. M. McKim, but will go to J. Mott's. Expects to see E. M. Davis "fresh from Fremont."

«Philadelphia» Tells about the Longwood meetings. Praises the hospitality of the Quakers. Stayed part of the time at the John Coxes's and the remainder with Isaac Mendenhall, "where Mary Ann Johnson has been rustivating ... to the improvement of her health." A memorial to Pres. Lincoln was drawn up, imploring him to abolish Slavery. T. Garrett, Alice B. Hambleton and O. Johnson were chosen to present the memorial. W.L.G. and Theodore Tilton did most of the speaking at the meetings. Has been invited to a gathering at the home of Robert Purvis. J. M. McKim and his daughter sailed for Port Royal last week. "His place at the office is supplied by Benjamin C. Bacon. Heard that W. L. Garrison Jr.'s throat is improving.

Philadelphia. Mr. (John A.?) Bingham proposed that the writer should be "one of the commission," but he refused, insisting that the committee should be "above suspicion of partizanship." Mr. Stanton's choice was for "his friend Bishop Matthew Simpson (a good man), Horace Binney aetat 88 and Prof. Louis Agassiz!... I was sure that Mr. Binney would not accept & feared that Agassiz would..." Mr. Sumner chose Dr. (Samuel Gridley) Howe, and thought that Frank Sanborn would be right for secretary. The writer fixed on Mr. (Richard Albert?) Tilghman. All declined, and Mr. Sumner wrote that "with the declination of Mr. Tilghman the [redacted] had broken down." Mr. (George Luther) Stearns and Mr. (Frank [redacted]) Bird came through Philadelphia full of the "bureau" idea, but the writer has heard nothing further from them or from Mr. Sumner.

McClellan Hospital, Nicetown, (Pa.). The writer regrets that the addressee has been ill. Comments on the war situation. Thinks Lee's army would "surely demoralized and burned to ashes under the fire of the Fortifications around Washington ..." if he tried to take that city. (Second page of letter headed "My dear friend") The writer is troubled and apologizes because his last letter may have offended the addressee. He wrote to Gov. John A. Andrew asking him for a furlough. Dr. Brown has promised an answer next week. The writer's wound is healed, but he still has pain occasionally.

McClellan Hospital, Nicetown near Philadelphia. The writer is glad that the addressee is at home again, because "everything goes the wrong way" when she is not there. The writer would have been successful (in obtaining his furlough?) if she had taken care of his affairs. "Now I do not know if I shall be able to see Mrs. Weston all my friends & Almira & little Anna ... Afflictedness is my pastime now." Details the long red tape involved in procuring a furlough. Dr. Brown (of the hospital) does not favor the writer and takes no interest in the matter. The writer appealed to Governor Andrew, who wrote to the surgeon in charge of the hospital, "who gave the letter I beleave to Dr. [redacted]," who did not like it. Pet- has been drafted. The writer [redacted] wishes he would join the Mass. Battery. The writer does not believe the war will last long.

McClellan Hospital, Nicetown, (Pa.). The writer, hoping for a furlough, recounts in detail his talks with Dr. Brown and Dr. Murphy, "who is over Dr. Brown." The writer says that if he does not get a furlough now, "then I will go to the Battery for I dont like to see Dr. Brown anymore. I would be happy when I could come yet-Sure we would have a splendid time." A.L.S. 4 p. 8 1/8 x 5 1/8 in.

McClellan Hospital near Philadelphia. The writer is satisfied that everything has been done for him in the effort to obtain a furlough. Dr. Brown received the letter from Mr. Humphrey. But the writer knows now that it will be impossible for him to go home. "I shall have to go out into Virginia and visit the Rebels with fire and sword to please Onkel Sam ...". Was told that an application for a furlough would do no good as "there were no blanks." The writer complains; "they take Comfort in their Hospital they do not know how a man feels who has been over a year in the front-into Virginia Camp life-they take no interest in the matter..." The writer copies the text of his letter to Governor Andrew. "Now you see that I have done everything to get home-but as a soldier who must obey have been disappointed." The writer is glad that Almira's

Mr. & Mrs. James Mott were prevented from coming by the death of their eldest grandson, Henry Cavender. Mrs. Mott is not well. The writer's daughters sang and played for the guests and his son Charles accompanied them on the bones, "a sort of castanets that ... are a great improvement on the old Moorish idea." The writer regrets that the addressee's eyes are no better, and he will wait till it is convenient for her to write if she disapproves of his letter "carning Mr. P." «Plymouth, Pa.» At the suggestion of Abby Kelley, the writer requests the addressee to urge Wendell Phillips and Edmund Quincy to attend the convention in Philadelphia on December 23d. If Thomas Earle will "advocate his peculiar views," those versed in the "non-voting" theory will be needed to answer him. The writer expatiates on the wrongness and effect of Earle's views. "There is not probably another place in the U.S. so favorable to the Dissolution question as this." The influence of the Covenanters and Friends has prepared the way for the discussion. "Our reception in Pennsylvania was truly gratifying." Dr. Bartholomew Fussel is journeying with the writer (and Abby Kelley). Most of the antislavery in this region is among the H. Quakers.

„Solebury, Bucks Co., Penn.: The Buckingham Female Anti-Slavery Society sends two resolutions adopted by the members. One relates to the doctrine of Non-Resistance. Abolitionists in his neighborhood had always followed the Declaration of Sentiments with its peaceful emancipation pledge until the murder of E. P. Lovejoy in Alton, "and the consequent justification by many in high places of the un-Christian defence made there ..." Says that the doctrine of Non-Resistance was explained away by the American Anti-Slavery Society. There are Abolitionists who would resent having the funds of the American Anti-Slavery Society "appropriated to the erection of bulwarks of carnal defence ..." The Buckingham Society will depend on the Liberator for its information.

	To Francis Jackson	No.17

Willistown, Chester, Pa.: The writer acknowledges receipt of a letter containing resolves of the members and friends of the Mass. and American Anti-Slavery Societies. Favors wider circulation of the Liberator and is trying to get signatures to a petition for a law forbidding the use of sheriffs, constables, etc. in slave catching. Deplores the "degrading miasma of Politics." Accuses the Democrats of selfishness. Believes that the despotic course of Southern policy will help awaken the North to its true interest. Praises Garrison.

To "My dear friend"

Willow Glen, (Pa.?). The writer thanks the addressee for her "kind welcome home." Discusses the plan for bringing George Thompson to the United States. J. M. McKim was in favor of the plan when he and the writer were both in England. "Though I have not a Philadelphia home, as once, in wh. to welcome you ..." Speaks of Lucia Weston's improving health and Mrs. M. W. Chapman's desire to return to America. Talks about the Estlins. "That Mr. Estlin will recover his former power is not to be supposed, - but his intellect is clear ... Our good R. D. Webb too has regained his usual health after his severe illness ..." The writer was pleased to see a notice in the Liberator praising William Ward Forster. "I am sorry to learn by a note from Susan Abbot, - who is now in Boston, -
